PREFACE

ONCE more the Class Secretary presents a report of the Class of Fifty-Seven. Departing somewhat from the methods of former reports, made in the years 1866, 1882, and 1893, he has tried to give, in succinct form, certain life-facts in our personal records, which it may be well to recall and make permanent; it is natural also that the events of life which have occurred to us since 1893 should prove interesting; moreover, the constant inquiries made of the Secretary regarding the children and grandchildren of the Class and what places they have filled and are likely to fill in the world deserve careful answer. It has been the endeavor of the Secretary in these pages to meet the requests which different members of the Class have made.

In 1866 the Class Secretary said: "Are we not justified in looking for an honorable position in the world for the Class of Fifty-Seven?" In 1907 Long said at the Commencement exercises: "I should be happy to speak for my Classmates if I knew where they were. . . . I cannot find them. I am sure, however, that they are all here — a few with their shields, though the rest are on them — all here or accounted for, ready, while their Alma Mater calls the roll, to lay their record in her lap, hoping to receive on their heads the pat of her benignant hand. They have done the best they could."

Have they filled well the places assigned them? Let the world say.

John Holmes, Jr., July 26, 1878; now with Norfolk & Western R. R. at Roanoke, Va.

Converse became Rector of the Church of the Messiah at Gwynedd, Penn.; and remained in this service till the time of his death. The Living Church of June 6, 1904, has notice of Converse, a part of which is here copied:

"Previous to entering upon his preparation for holy orders he had studied law and had been admitted to the bar.

"For ten years, from 1871 to 1881, he was professor of Latin and Greek at Racine College, where he was closely associated with the late Dr. James DeKoven in relations of peculiar sympathy and friendship. After Dr. DeKoven's death Professor Converse was at once thought of as well fitted for the vacant Wardenship of Racine, but he positively declined to allow his name to be considered and shortly resigned his professorship and became rector of Trinity Church, Bristol, R. I., at the same time conducting a small preparatory school for boys. Later, he continued his work of instruction at New Hamburgh, N. Y., and Cold Spring, N. Y. As he grew older he decided to give up his teaching, but became rector of Christ Church, Riverton, N. J., and, finally, of the Church of the Messiah at Gwynedd. Between these rectorships he spent one year abroad, officiating for a time at the American Church at Lucerne, Switzerland.

"As a professor and teacher Mr. Converse made a deep mark in the lives of his pupils, all of whom loved and respected him for his lofty character and conspicuous ability. He was a classical scholar of the good old-fashioned sort, accurate and elegant, inspiring, positive. One of his pupils once said that it was a liberal education to hear him read Horace in the Latin.

"Many men now in business and in the professions, men who sat in his classes, will mourn, with friends and parishioners, the loss of this graceful scholar, this faithful priest, this Christian gentleman. May light eternal shine upon him!"

At the Commencement dinner in 1900 he contributed a poem, which is here given:

Nineteen hundred come at last! Joys and sorrows overpast; Greet we still with heart and hand Fifty-seven's lessening band.

Greet we too in mem'ries sweet, Who with us were wont to meet; They may beckon — who can say? — From the shore not far away.

They have passed — yet left behind Words and deeds of gold refined; Ours the lot their pace to keep, As we follow up the steep.

Write we then the pledge to-night On our shields of honor bright; Ne'er to sully, ne'er betray Bonds of friendship made for aye.

Closer still our ranks to press, As the doughty band grows less, Keeping fresh in mem'ry's lore Every scene we've travelled o'er.

Keeping watch through weal and woe For each comrade here below; That no evil thing betide Aught of Alma Mater's pride.

Mrs. Converse left Gwynedd in the fall of 1904. She is now living at Torresdale, Penn.

Child:

Bessie, June 28, 1868; married Murray Anthony Potter (1895).

During the last years of his life — as ever before — Lincoln held the place of an eminent lawyer, a highly honored member of the community, a warm and devoted friend. Long, in speaking before the Bar Association, has said:... "His range of practice was large. He was counsel for some of our largest corporate interests.... He was recognized as an especially wise and safe adviser in Chambers; he was also one of the most busily engaged advocates before juries and the judges.... His manner was always that of a gentleman. He was straightforward, earnest, and honest. His preparation was complete, both in the law and in the facts. There was no subterfuge or trick or sharp practice. No client ever had more loyal or painstaking counsel." Lincoln was for many years one of the Overseers of the University and for twelve years the President of the Board; President of the Bar Association for two years. He was President of the Talbot Woolen Company, and of the Union and St. Botolph clubs; Chairman of the Trustees of the Boston Public Library; President of the Unitarian Club; a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society and a member in many learned, business, and social organizations.

JOHN DAVIS LONG

Born: Buckfield, Me., October 27, 1838.

Address: Haynes Building, Boston, and Hingham, Mass.

Parents: Zadoc and Julia Temple (Davis) Long.

Schools: Common schools in Buckfield, Me., and Hebron Academy.

Degrees: A.B., LL.D., 1880; Tufts, 1902.

Married: (first) September 13, 1870, Mary Woodward, daughter of George S. Glover of Hingham. She died, Boston, February 16, 1882; (second) May 22, 1886, Agnes, daughter of Rev. Joseph D. Peirce of Attleborough, Mass.

Children:

Margaret, October 28, 1873; A.B. (Smith), 1895; Member of Massachusetts Medical Society, 1903; Colorado State Medical Society, 1906; M.D. (Johns Hopkins), 1907; spent a year as physician at a charitable institution in New York and is now practising her profession in Denver, Colo.

Helen, June 16, 1875; died in Hingham, October 4, 1901.

Peirce, December 29, 1887; was at the Derby Academy in Hingham and the Middlesex School, Concord, Mass.; A.B. in the Class of 1910.

In June, 1895, Long published "After Dinner and Other Speeches"; in 1903, a valuable work on "The New American Navy" in two volumes, and at the Commencement in 1905 he gave to each member of the class a small, privately published volume of his poems.

The "Proceedings of the Massachusetts Historical Society" for June, 1909, contains his article on "Reminiscences of seventy years' education"; he delivered the Fourth of July oration in Boston in 1882, orations in commemoration of Governor Rice, Mayor Collins, and Vice-President Hamlin, and many other addresses.

In March, 1897, he became Secretary of the Navy by appointment from President McKinley and continued the same under President Roosevelt; he resigned the office, May 1, 1902. In this position he carried the department through the Spanish-American War.

At the Class dinner in June, 1901, he sent a telegram inviting the whole Class to be his guests on the U. S. S. Dolphin at New London, Conn., to witness the Harvard-Yale boat-race at that place. Fisher, Goldsmith, and Brown accepted the invitation.

In 1884 he was a delegate to the national Republican convention, and made a speech nominating George F. Edwards for the Presidency. In 1904 he was a delegate to the Presidential convention which met at Chicago and assisted in the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt (1881).

At the Memorial Hall exercises on Commencement Day, 1907, Long was to respond for the Class; but the lateness of the hour when he was called prevented his delivering the address which he had prepared. It is given in full in the Harvard Graduates' Magazine of September, 1907. He thus speaks of his classmates: "I should be happy to speak for my classmates if I knew where they are . . . I cannot find them. I am sure, however, that they are all here — a few with their shields, though the rest are on them — all here or accounted for, ready, while their Alma Mater calls the roll, to lay their record in her lap, hoping to receive on their heads the pat of her benignant hand. They have done the best they could."

He is a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society and President of the Puritan Trust Company of Boston, and is, as ever, actively engaged in public and benevolent work and as trustee of large estates. He has been President of the Overseers since the place was vacated by Lincoln. He gave the oration at the Abraham Lincoln Centennial in Symphony Hall, Boston, February 12, 1909. At the Inauguration of President Lowell in the College Yard, October 6, 1909, he inducted the new officer to office.

John Edward, March 23, 1868; he was educated at the Penn Charter school and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which latter school he left to take a situation in the Pennsylvania Railroad and later with the C. B. & Q. R. R. at Chicago; he had charge of a bridge on a road connecting St. Louis and Alton, Ill., for several years; married, July 15, 1902, Grace Leonard of Alton; he has one daughter, Harriet, May 14, 1903. In 1902 he became a broker in Chicago and is now manager, at 234 LaSalle Street, of the branch house of Bond & Goodwin, of Boston.

Sarah, January 17, 1870; married, February 12, 1901, Walter Dumaux Edmonds, and lives at 18 West 11th Street, New York; has John Buckley, November 28, 1901; Walter Dumaux, Junior, July 15, 1903, and Mary Elizabeth, January 1, 1909.

William Ropes, January 19, 1874 (1894; M.D. 1898); is now practising medicine at 146 East 39th Street, New York.

In January, 1901, after twenty-five years' service May resigned his pastorship of the First Unitarian Church of Philadelphia and was made Pastor Emeritus. During his ministerial life he was a frequent contributor to religious and secular periodicals and published many sermons. He was active in social and political movements for reform and preached many discourses on cognate topics. He wrote a biography of Reverend Samuel Longfellow (1839) and edited a volume of his sermons.

In 1901 he published a volume entitled "The Miracles and Myths of the New Testament," which was republished in 1908 in England.

In 1901 he wrote a memoir of John Codman Ropes, which has been privately printed.

Since his retirement from the ministry May has lived abroad much of the time, particularly in Rome. His leisure, in later years, has been chiefly devoted to the reading of classical and mediæval history and to the study of art and of the modern languages. He lives at the Hotel Gladstone in Philadelphia when in America.

In 1860 he wrote a song for the class dinner of which the following are stanzas:

Alas! Youth shall wane like the sand in the glass: E'en as we are singing, its swift moments pass. Our brows shall be wrinkled, our step shall be slow, But, say, shall our hearts be less faithful than now?

No! dear Alma Mater! around thee for aye Fond memories cluster that know not decay; And the last grey-hair brother that lingereth here 'Fifty-seven and Harvard united shall cheer!

Ropes continued in the practice of the law in the firm of Ropes, Gray, and Loring; he held an eminent place, filling many offices of honor and trust.

From boyhood Ropes was an admirer of Napoleon; and his frequent visits to the European battlefields and libraries gave him special opportunities for obtaining that full and exact information which characterized his Lowell lectures on "The First Napoleon," soon after published in a volume. He wrote "The Army under Pope," in the campaign series of the Civil War, and published numerous articles in Scribner's and the Atlantic: e. q., "The Likenesses of Julius Caesar," "Who lost Waterloo?" "The Campaign of Waterloo," "Some Illustrations of Napoleon and His Times," "General McClellan," "The Battle of Gettysburg," "The War as We see It Now," "General Sherman," etc. Also brief memoirs of his friends Palfrey, Devens, and Gray for the Proceedings of the Massachusetts Historical Society. His last work was "The Story of the Civil War," two volumes of which have appeared; others were contemplated but left unfinished.

Ropes was associated with the Republican party, was an overseer of Harvard College, Treasurer of the Union Club, fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society and various others, and the founder of the Military Historical Society of Massachusetts. President Hayes appointed him on the board of visitors to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. He was the first president of the first Civil Service Reform Club in Massachusetts. He enjoyed the rare distinction of being made a companion of the Loyal Legion of the United States, besides being an honorary member of the United States Cavalry Association, and a fellow of the Royal Historical Society of London.

In 1902 the class placed a marble tablet to his memory in Memorial Hall with the following inscription:

To JOHN CODMAN ROPES

> BORN APRIL 28, 1836 DIED OCT. 28, 1899

HARVARD COLLEGE, 1857

His classmates erect this memorial
Life may be given in many ways
And loyalty to truth be sealed
As bravely in the closet
As the field

A volume containing a memoir by May and Sowdon, addresses at the Massachusetts Historical, the Military Historical, and other societies was privately printed in 1901. This also contains a bibliographical record of his writings.

Ropes died at his home in Boston, October 27, 1899. His funeral at Trinity Church was largely attended. The number of young people present was very noticeable.

* JACOB GEBHARD RUNKLE

Born: Root, N. Y., August 6, 1831.

Died: Cobleskill, N. Y., April 14, 1900.

Parents: Daniel and Sally (Gordon) Runkle.

Degrees: A.B., A.M.

Married: June 4, 1863, Ella, daughter of Hon. Joseph H. Ramsey of Albany, N. Y.

Child:

Grace, June 3, 1867.

Runkle was at Commencement in 1895 and again in 1896. Then, as ever, his warm nature, his love for his friends and his loyalty to the Class were especially noticed. His illness for many years prevented his engaging in active business and he lived quietly at Cobleskill, faithfully attended by his daughter, Grace. She became educated as a trained nurse in Albany and for some years proved a valuable assistant to the medical men of that place and New York. Later she went into the business of furnishing surgical supplies, instruments, apparatus, and attendance at surgical operations. She is now at 38 Irving Place, Brooklyn, New York.

GEORGE MARY SEARLE

Born: London, England, June 27, 1839.

Address: Church of the Paulist Fathers, 415 West 59th Street, New York, N. Y.

Parents: Thomas and Anne (Noble) Searle.

Degrees: A.B., A.M. (Ph.D. Catholic University).

Unmarried.

Searle was born in London, England, of an English mother, who was a relative of Rear-Admiral Sir William Parry, the Arctic explorer. On the paternal side he is in direct line from Robbert Searle who lived in Dorchester, Mass., in 1662; and also of Thomas Dudley, first Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts. He was related to the celebrated Mrs. Ann Hutchinson, a cousin of the poet, Dryden.

Since the date of the last report Searle has continued actively engaged in the work of the Paulist Fathers and in scientific research. It has been said of him that he is among the leaders of the country in mathematical and scientific work. The chief work of the Paulist Fathers is patterned after their patron, Saint Paul, and is to spread the Gospel and engage in mission work. Much of their labor is devoted to non-Catholics. Nearly one half the members of the order have been converts from Protestantism. Of this body Searle was made Superior General in 1904, the fourth in the history of the Institute. An account of his religious change is found in the "Stories of Conversions."

He has written "Plain Facts for Fair Minds" and "How to become a Catholic." Of the former work five hundred and fifty-nine thousand have been issued and other works of a religious character.

A writer in the Catholic World in August, 1904, says of him "that in all the years of his priesthood no one of his brethren has been more assiduous in the discharge of the duties of his sacred office or more regular and edifying in his observance of his rule. By the sick and poor of St. Paul's parish his name is venerated and beloved. To his fellow Paulists his example has been uplifting and stimulating. To his penitents he has been a loving father and spiritual guide. To his superiors always a wise and careful and discreet counsellor. . . . Taken for all in all the new Paulist Superior is a man teres atque rotundus; a man of ability, a man of charity, a man of piety."

* ROBERT DICKSON SMITH

Born: Brandon, Miss., April 23, 1838.

Died: Boston, Mass., May 30, 1888.

Parents: John DeWolfe and Judith Wells (Smith) Smith.

School: Hallowell Academy, Maine.

Degrees: A.B., A.M., LL.B.

Married: July 30, 1863, Paulina Cony, daughter of George Melville Weston of Washington, D. C.

Children:

Robert Dickson, May 8, 1864; in 1886 he changed his name to Weston-Smith, and again, October 1, 1906, to Robert Dickson Weston; married, October 4, 1888, Anstiss, daughter of Charles F. Walcott (1857), and Anne, daughter of Morrill Wyman (1833, M.D. 1837); has Robert Weston, December 21, 1889; Charles, September 25, 1891; Melville, December 22, 1893; Anstiss, March 27, 1895. Weston is practising law at 70 State Street, Boston.

Alice Weston Smith, November 10, 1868.

Melville Weston Smith, May 24, 1870; died May 14, 1880.

Paulina Cony Smith, August 8, 1873; married, January 26, 1907, Rev. Alexander V. G. Allen, S.T.D. (1886), who died July 1, 1908.

Mrs. R. D. Smith, Mrs. Allen, and R. D. Weston and his family all live in Cambridge.

(See Class Secretary's Report, 1893.)

ARTHUR JOHN CLARK SOWDON

Born: Boston, March 6, 1835.

Address: 66 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

Parents: John and Charlotte Harrison (Capen) Sowdon.

Schools: Tower's and Baker's private schools and Public Latin School.

Degrees: A.B., A.M., LL.B.

In June, 1903, he was present by invitation at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. May 4, 1904, he was chosen for the sixth time a Deputy to the Triennial General Convention of the Episcopal Church.

Sowdon was unable to attend the convention in Richmond on account of his health. His absence called forth many expressions of tender regard and appreciation of his work.

The Massachusetts delegation did a gracious thing and gave him much pleasure by sending him a "round robin" from Richmond. Bishop Lawrence thoughtfully sent him a personal card with a message of sympathy. The Connecticut deputies, through Dr. Harriman, their chairman, sent a card with the words "We miss you" on it. A resolution came from his own committee, that on expenses. He received letters from Dr. McKim, President of the House of Deputies, Dr. Anstice, secretary, Mr. Skiddy, treasurer, and from many deputies besides. Finally came a resolution of sympathy from the House of Deputies itself, offered by Dr. Alsop of Brooklyn. These messages brought much cheer into the sick room and showed the estimation in which he is held abroad as well as at home.

In May, 1909, he was chosen for the seventeenth time to the Standing Committee of the Diocese of Massachusetts. November 10, 1909, he was re-elected President of the Episcopal Church Association for the twenty-seventh year.

From 1895 to 1906 he was Governor of the Society of Colonial Wars of Massachusetts, in 1905 was elected Governor-General of the General Society, and again in May, 1908.

Within the last few years he has accepted membership in the following societies: The American Forestry Association, The National Geographic Society, The Association for the Advancement of Science, The American Political Science Association.

*JOSEPH LEWIS STACKPOLE

LIVINGSTON STONE

Born: Cambridge, Mass., October 21, 1836.

Address: 835 East Hutchinson Street, Edgewood Park, near Pittsburgh, Penn.

Parents: Peter Robert and Lavinia (Winship) Stone.

School: Cambridge Latin School.

Degrees: A.B., A.M.

Married: April 8, 1875, Rebecca Saulsbury, daughter of Hon. Edmund L. Cushing of Charlestown, N. H.

Child:

Edmund Cushing, March 8, 1882 (1904); engaged in electrical engineering at the Westinghouse Plant in Pittsburgh, Penn.

Stone remained at Cape Vincent, N. Y., until 1906, and then removed to Pittsburgh, Penn. He has been called "The most eminent fish culturist of our time."

From 1871 to 1880 Stone and Seth Green carried 600,000 young shad from the Hudson across the continent and released them in the Sacramento and Columbia rivers. They now abound in all the rivers of the Pacific Coast, and the annual catch is more than 1,500,000 pounds. Striped bass, from Jersey waters, brought across in 1882, were ancestors of the fish of which 2,000,000 pounds are now taken each year from Los Angeles to British Columbia. These are but examples of the fish culture and transplantation in which Stone has had a very great if not the principal part during the past forty years.

1906	66	"	"	66	12	"
1907	"	"	66	"	14	"

In addition members of the Class have been present the same years at class-rooms in the College Yard. It was decided that our dinner of 1907 and the meeting at Phillips Brooks House should be the last of our stated gatherings.

CLASS FUND

An account of the Class Fund is given in the report of 1882. It has been held by Bartlett under a Declaration of Trust since November 17, 1881. In addition to providing for the Class dinners and meeting the expenses for lunch on Commencement Days, it has paid for printing Class Reports of 1866, 1882, and 1893, and the comparative photographs of 1897, for the Class Window and Class Gate, the tablet in Memorial Hall to John Ropes, the Memorial Hall fund, the Alumni Association fund, and the contribution to equip Soldiers Field, and has furnished assistance to members of the Class and their families where such aid seemed called for.

CLASS GATE

In June, 1900, the Class authorized the Class Committee to expend a suitable sum for the erection of a gate and certain portions of the fence round the College Yard as may be needed. The offer made by the Class was accepted by the corporation, and plans for the work were made by Messrs. McKim, Mead, and White of New York.

The space from Wadsworth House to Dane Hall was selected and is now occupied by the Class; 40 feet by the gate itself and 170 by the fence. The entire cost was $6,172. In 1909 the work was finished by adding the number of the Class and these verses from Horace:

Felices ter et amplius Quos inrupta tenet copula nec malis Divolsus querimoniis Suprema citius solvet amor die.

CLASS BOOK

MEMORANDUM is made that the Class Book, containing memoirs of many of the class, the Class Oration and Poem, and records to the present time, is in the College Library.

THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

THE Class celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of its graduation at Commencement, 1907. Circulars were sent to members of the Class well in advance, announcing the proposed plan. Invitations were mailed to members of classes older than our own. to members of 1858, 1859, and 1860, the sons of our classmates, the President and Fellows, President of the Alumni Association, and a very few more. One hundred and nine accepted and about the same number came to Phillips Brooks House. A substantial spread was furnished, an hour pleasantly passed and then the Class joined the procession going to Memorial Hall where seats had been reserved for the Class. It had been intended that Long should respond for the Class, and his speech was ready; but the length of the proceedings before our own turn made the hour so late that he confined himself to but few words. They are given, as delivered by him, under his personal record. The full text of his intended address is given in the Harvard Graduates' Magazine, for September, 1907.

Before the meeting in Cambridge eight members of the Class took automobiles at the Union Club in Boston and went, at his invitation, in which he included the whole class, to the home of Brooks at West Medford, where they were received and handsomely entertained by Brooks and his wife and children. After a pleasant hour the automobiles were resumed and left us in the College Yard.

INAUGURATION OF PRESIDENT LOWELL

On the 19th of May, 1909, President Charles William Eliot (1853) closed the term of forty years in the Presidency of the University, and on the 6th of October following, Abbott Lawrence Lowell (1877) was inaugurated in his stead. Members of the Class joined thousands of others in front of University—alumni, dignitaries from other universities from this country and Europe and others—ladies and gentlemen—in witnessing and assisting at the imposing services. Long, as President of the Overseers, inducted the new officer to his place. The President gave his inaugural address and some thirty honorary degrees were conferred.

Lunch followed at the Harvard Union and the meeting of the Harvard Alumni Association took place in the afternoon at Memorial Hall.
